

THE CONDON GLOBE.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 5, 1892.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

In the restriction of immigrants to our shores there should be discrimination in favor of the industrious and honest home-seekers. There are classes of foreigners who come to our shores who become good citizens, and who by habit of strict economy soon secure a competence, even if they are penniless when they arrive. We have known vast regions in the East which foreigners have made productive, and which our people considered worthless. The same will be true of Oregon, and there are forest lands on the bleak mountain sides, out of which the hardy foreigner could make attractive farms if they had the opportunity. Inured to an inhospitable climate, these hardy sons of toil are accustomed to fell giant forests, and to draw from a reluctant soil not only a sustenance, but an abundance. Of whatever race, the honest and industrious, who believe in the dignity of labor, should receive the hand of welcome; while the indolent and vicious, of all races or nationalities, should be taught the fact that free institutions will not prosper under their influence, and that America offers no asylum from outraged justice.

The school population of Oregon shows satisfactory increase, there being 6148 more children of school age in the state than last year. Of these there is an excess of 2556 boys. The total number of school children this year is 111,770. In Washington, 100,196. Excess in Oregon, 11,574. Washington has never thrown as many votes as Oregon by over 14,000. Now we have this phenomenon, that though Washington falls so much behind Oregon in the number of her voters and her school children, yet the census of 1890 gave her 36,000 more inhabitants. That census was a fraud. Probably the real fact is that Washington's census was undertaken and Oregon's was undertaken. At any rate, the infallible register of voters and school children shows that Oregon has in fact the larger population.

The Secretary of State informs us that a settlement has been reached between the United States and Chili as to the indemnity to be paid by the latter on account of the assault on the crew of the cruiser Baltimore. $75,000 in gold will be distributed among the families of the two men who lost their lives, and to the surviving members of the crew who were wounded. There is a good deal of difference between this sum and the amount originally claimed on their behalf; but it will be conceded that the amount is a fair and reasonable compensation. Not that the case is one where a money payment can be regarded as wholly compensatory to the sufferers, but neither was it one in which our government could have been a party to an exorbitant demand.

Absolute prohibition of tobacco in all its forms to young men and boys is being tried in Canada. The law went into effect a few weeks ago, and is termed the Cigarette Act. But it is not properly named, since it is aimed against tobacco in every form. All persons in Canada under 18 years of age are now prohibited from buying, using, or having tobacco in their possession, and those who sell or give it to them will be liable to heavy fines. What a blessing it would be if we had such a law in this country.
